

Prof. Konstantinos Kafetsios, Ph.D. - Attachment orientations in leader-follower interaction

Mimořádný profesor sociální a organizační psychologie, Katedra psychologie Filozofické fakulty Univerzity Palackého v Olomouci a University of Crete

Recently, there is a growing interest in the role attachment orientations play in leader-follower interaction. Drawing from several recent published and unpublished studies, the talk will explore the behavioral and perceptual dynamics associated with leaders' and followers' secondary attachment strategies and how they influence effective leader-follower interaction. The presented research and approach is multilevel, conceptually, operationally, and analytically.
